The following data is one of a series that has been compiled on Butte County crops for the use of persons who are contemplating the purchase of a farm and need some sort of measure as to what might be expected in the way of costs and returns from different crops they might raise. These data are based on cost of production studies, crop reporting service price figures and, in part, on estimates. We believe they are as accurate as can be compiled for a purpose of this kind, but because of all of the variables involved, they must be used only as a basic guide. The figures below are based on 100 cows -- twice this number would probably be needed for a minimum operation.
